

Connection

Psalm 27:4 “One thing I ask of the LORD, this is what I seek: that I may dwell in the house of the LORD all the days of my life, to gaze upon the beauty of the LORD and to seek him in his temple.”

To me there's a cultural genocide happening on our home-front with media. Texting, twittering, facebooking, surfing the web, and if not the web, catch the wave on the Dish, iPod, or iPhone. People can connect to internet, but they can't seem to connect at home. This genocide doesn't kill the body, but does it does kill the soul.

Do you know the ironic part of the deal? It's all marketed under the umbrella of connection. Never have I seen a culture so intimately disintegrated, and crippled at being able to have true connection with God and man.

Here's how you know if your soul is being slaughtered by media: If you wake up in the morning, and you're more feverishly seeking to check your inbox than connecting with God, it's started. You're soul is being bled, and your holding the knife.

So what's the answer? Connection with God. Why do people text, twitter, or open a facebook page? Or, the moment they press "send" on an email long for a reply? Connection. It's what God wired us for. That hunger was given to us so that we could know Him intimately and personally.

One morning I woke up, and I found myself more excited about feverishly checking my inbox to see what people had to say. The Holy Spirit immediately pricked my conscience and showed me that my true need was to connect with God. I shut the computer off, and ran to the connection that gives life...Jesus.

False connection is like breathing carbon dioxide. Your body thinks its breathing oxygen, but it's not. Our spiritual oxygen is found in our connection with God. Don't let this be replaced.
